  - A mention of a Gold Rush theme had been accidentally left in the 2026 Leader's Guide, please disregard.
- Depending on the weather and state of camp roads it may or may not be possible to drive into camp sites to deposit unit gear. Please be prepared to haul gear in with your Klondike sleds from parking lot area if necessary.

Please be aware this is a long-range forecast and weather can change. Be weather aware and be sure and check the weather regularly up until arrival.

Currently Camp Raymond is projected to receive rain and snow the week before Klondike and the week of Klondike. Accumulations are not anticipated to be more than 1 to 3 inches. Even though the projected highs are 40°F to 47°F which will melt most of the snow, there will be snow and/or mud in shaded areas of the camp.

Do not take this forecast as an indication that proper footwear and clothing for cold weather camping is not needed. Camp Ranger wants to emphasize that tennis shoes are not proper for Camp Raymond under these weather conditions.

Please pay attention to overnight lows which will be in the mid-teens. These lows mean adequate sleeping arrangements will need to be made. Of note is the rating on most sleeping bags are for survival only to be comfortable you want a rating that is 10°F to 20°F lower than your expected overnight temperature. Your bag may have a comfort rating that takes this into account.

FOOD & WATER Meals, Dietary Needs, Water

The hand washing stations near the latrines in the campsite will not have water as they have been winterized. Please do not turn water on to these stations while in camp as they are not freeze-proof and can lead to damage of water lines supplying them.

Campsite Campfires

Units can have fires in their campsite during Klondike. Remember to bring kindling, tinder, and fuel for your campfire. Ranger has stated that there is a limited amount of firewood available but it is wet and will be difficult to start. It would be best to bring your own supply of firewood. Tinder and kindling will not be provided at all.

Propane campfire rings are acceptable as well.

Driving to and in Camp

Ranger has asked that all participants traveling to, in, and from camp observe the posted speed limits. This is for your safety and to prevent damaging roads.
