Trades Day provides an opportunity for Scouts to delve into an area that has a career potential. Many of these occupations have intern or short technical schools rather than 4 years of college to prepare for a career. Statistics show that many of these trades are in high demand and make an excellent career choice without the time and expense of degrees.

With this in mind, Scouts need to be prepared to spend the day ready to get dirty and do hands on activities to earn the merit badge. Please check the requirements for each merit badge so the Scout is dressed appropriately for their class and ready to fully participate. Many of our counselors work in the area they are instructing and have a passion to share their knowledge. Scouts need to be focused, ready to listen and learn. Many of the merit badges have age limits to ensure the scouts can get the most out of the day.

Adult leadership skills training will be held during the day and open to any registered adult.
