

BURNING QUESTIONS

What trees know about fire.

Tree rings, areas of wood between light and dark bands- each represents one year of tree growth.

The bark on the outside of the tree protects the living layer just underneath, known as the cambium layer. The cambium layer produces the growth rings inside the tree, adding new layers each season.

Each curve represents an area where the tree was wounded by fire and regrew in between fires.